

Reimagining team teaching

the why guides
the what and the how

Emilija Malinova: emilija.malinova@rmit.edu.au

Anne Motti: anne.motti@rmit.edu.au

26/10/2019

Who are we?

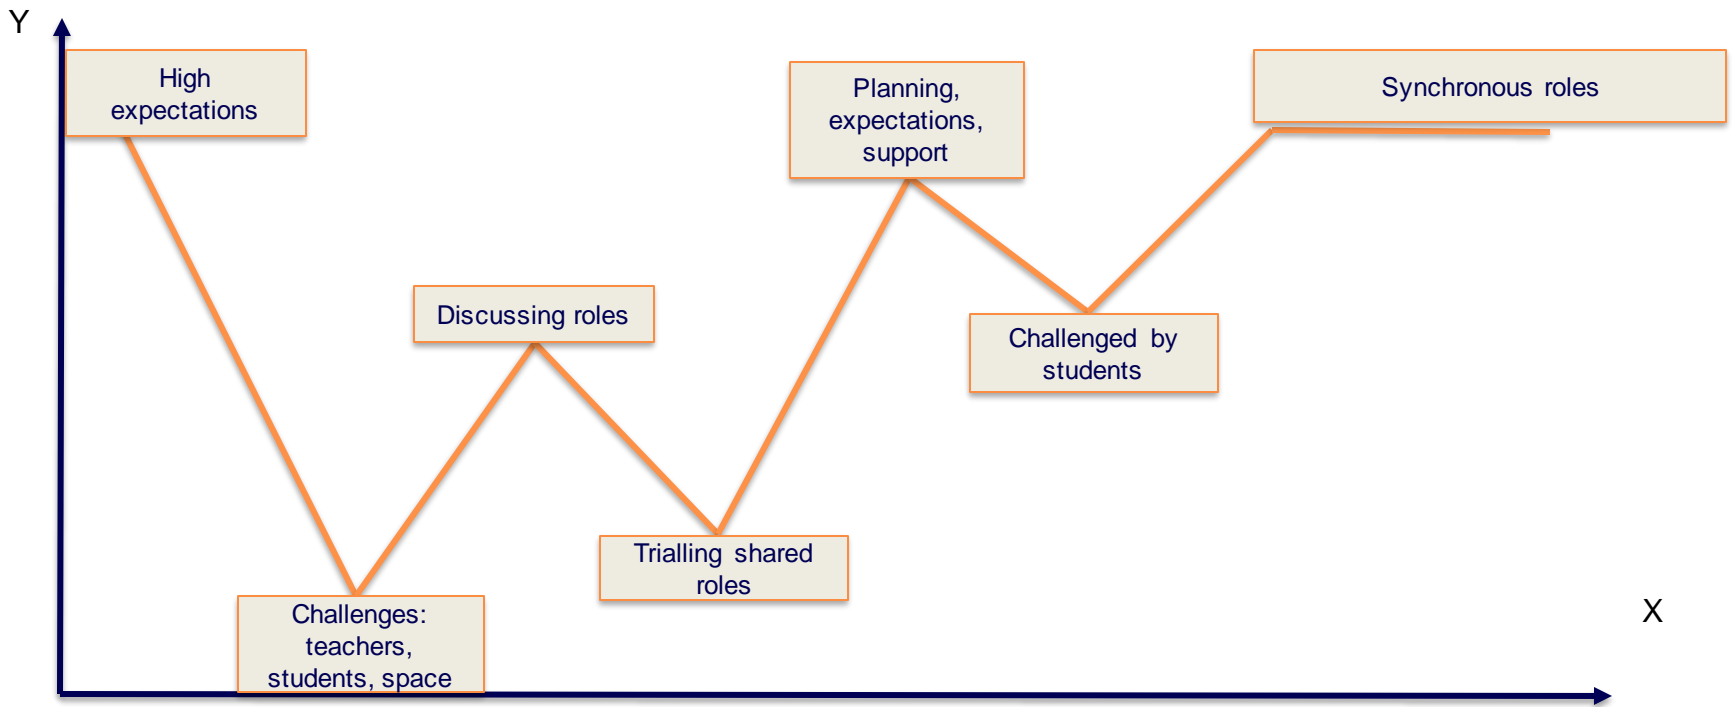

Pathway program
Foundation Studies

‘The most valuable resource that all teachers have is each other. Without collaboration our growth is limited to our own perspectives.’

Robert John Meehan

Stages of team teaching

Y=stages of team teaching and challenges

X=the first month of the semester

Team Teaching

- Types of delivery:
 - parallel teaching
 - rotating/alternative teaching (small focus groups)
 - different stations
 - different roles (instructions and facilitating group work)

Parallel Teaching

Tutorials

Emilija

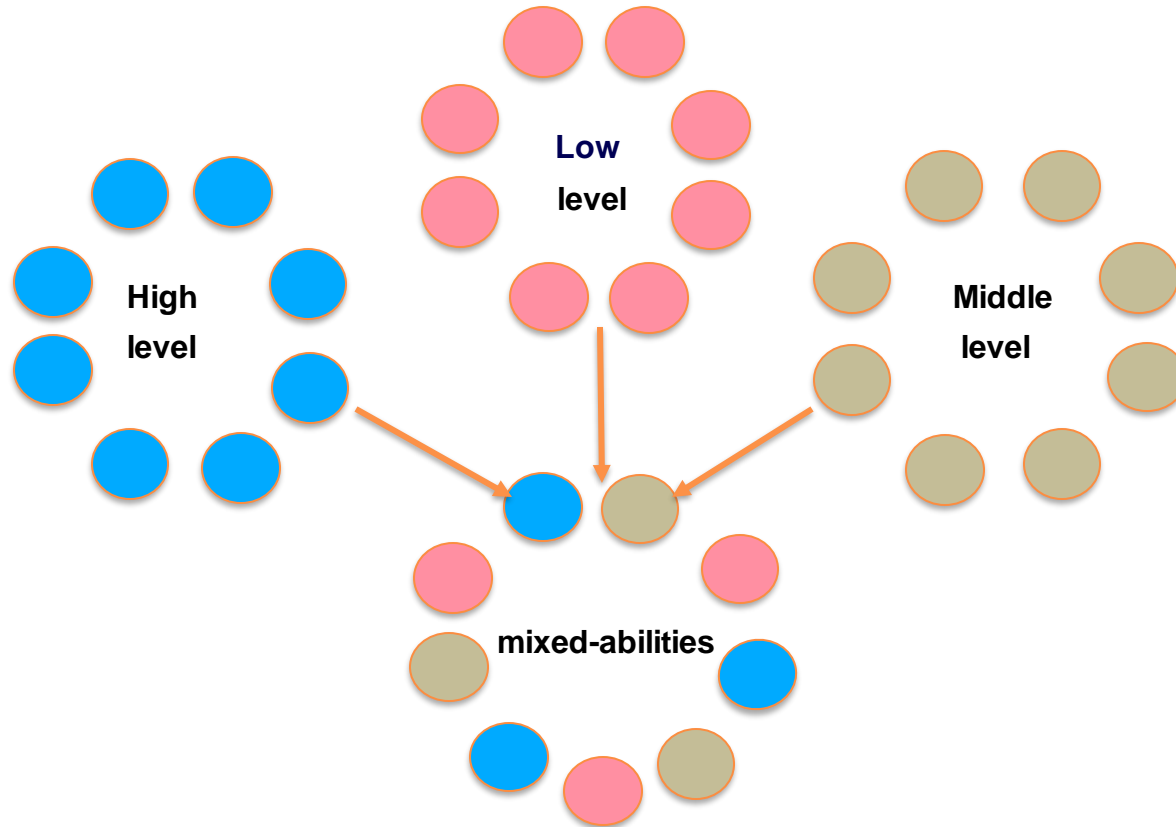

Anne

Alternative Teaching

Focus groups according to different abilities-differentiation

Flipped Classroom

Station Teaching

Students are in mixed-abilities groups
Globalisation: images and flow-chart

Benefits of team teaching for the students

- student engagement
- experience, sense of belonging
- attendance
- results
- develop transferrable across both subjects such as
 - group work
 - communication (English becomes the only language used)
 - creativity
 - analytical skills

Benefits of team teaching for the teachers

- co-planning, co-teaching and co-marking
- shared goals, expectations, accountability
- have an equal role and complementary styles
- constructive feedback and ongoing reflection
- professional development
 - differentiated teaching
 - multimodal teaching

Tell us

Thank you

Any questions?

“Coming together is a beginning, staying together is progress, and working together is success.”

Henry Ford